Breaking News! All EJTES Articles as of 2007 Now Indexed In PubMed/Medline!

Dear Colleagues and Friends!

We would like to share some exciting news with you in regard to the European Journal of Trauma and Emergency Surgery.

As you already know, EJTES was accepted for listing in Medline in mid-2015. Right after the listing, articles from 2014 and 2015 were indexed and readily searchable via the PubMed database. However, it took some time to add and properly index the journal's older articles and their metadata to PubMed.

This has now been achieved: Recently, all EJTES articles as of 2007 were added to the PubMed database, so that all articles published in EJTES from 2007 onwards are now indexed and are thus searchable! In total, close to 1,000 articles published in EJTES are now available to researchers in the field.

To directly access the journal's articles on PubMed/Medline, please follow this link: <http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/?term=european+journal+of+trauma+and+emergency+surgery>

Please allow us once again to thank you for the tremendous support you lent the journal and for your time and efforts, which have contributed immensely to the journal's success!

Furthermore, we would like to call your attention to the first ESTES guideline recently published in EJTES on Acute Mesenteric Ischaemia. The Open Access article is freely available to anyone, anytime and can be read and downloaded on SpringerLink: <http://link.springer.com/article/10.1007/s00068-016-0634-0>

Please feel free to share the exciting news with your colleagues!

“Overcoming Adversity and Living with a Disability” by HEATHER MILLS!

Heather Mills started her business career at the age of 14. In the 1990s she moved to former Yugoslavia and became involved in the Balkan Crisis. This was the start of her charity and campaigning career, with a refugee crisis center in London.

Heather's road traffic accident in 1993 in the UK, which resulted in the loss of her lower leg, a fractured skull, a crushed pelvis and ribs, and a punctured lung, encouraged her to not give up and to develop with her team prosthetic limbs for running, skiing, and ice dancing.

The invited lecture will take place on Sunday, April 24, 2016 at Reed Messe Wien, Congress Center. The honorarium will be donated to Diakoniewerk Schladming.

Heather Mills says:

"It is vital that surgeons fully understand when to amputate and when to save the limb and what length of the limb should be amputated for the perfect fitting prosthesis. I overcame my adversity and inspired millions around the world to try and overcome their misfortune. I'm forever grateful for the team of doctors that saved my life."

News from the Disaster & Military Surgery Section

Dear Members of ESTES

The Disaster & Military section has been busy exploring a collaboration with MSF Brussels. It has always been my personal ideal that a group of dedicated surgeons of the ESTES are willing and able to participate in disaster relief when called upon. We have a tremendous knowhow and skills; wouldn't it be fantastic if we could use these skills on short notice when a disaster occurs.

Last year I had a meeting in Brussels with MSF (Medicine sans Frontier). Of the three large MSF centres (Brussels, Amsterdam, Paris), Brussels is currently the most active with relief in the trauma field. Currently they have a shortage of physicians to provide relief and are very interested in working together.

With this enquiry I would like to take an inventory, within the ESTES members, of who would be interested in working with MSF.

Please realize this is only an enquiry; many details will be required, including minimal period of deployment, insurance, safety, etc. These will follow, but first I have to know if there are enough people interested to organize such an initiative.

If you are interested please send me an email to: m.bemelman@elisabeth.nl stating
